Some Beauty Hints: The Best Cosmetics

NINETY-FIVE women out of a hundred are complexion-conscious, yet there is not one in a thousand who knows what her complexion is made of, and it is this ignorance that prevents most women from making the best use of their cosmetics.

We have the best cosmetics in the world, and fortunately for most of us the reasonably priced face creams, powders, soaps, and lotions, give our faces exactly the same face service, as the most expensive type of cosmetics.

Knowledge Helps.

TO get the best results out of home beauty treatment of any description one must obviously have a little knowledge about one's own skin.

There are a great many people who firmly believe that the human body is covered with seven skins.
It is quite true that the skin does consist of seven layers, but for complexion purposes these can be divided into three main divisions:
The top part of the skin consists of millions of scales, and what most women fail to realise is that these scales are continually being rubbed off and then renewed by the cells from the layer below, which is the true skin. It is this which is the most important part of one's complexion.

It is unfair to expect even the best cosmetics to work wonders on a complexion that suffers from bad circulation. Women are apt to forget that the skin, like every other part of the body, depends for its nourishment on the air you breathe, the exercise you take,
and the food you eat. Therefore,
the first step in every beauty treatment is an adequate amount of fresh air, exercise, and a well-balanced diet.

A Good Base.

A DIET suggested for women who are inclined to feel listless and depressed, and whose complexions are pale and dull-looking, consists of: Breakfast—orange juice, oatmeal porridge or any cereal, with plenty of milk, toast, bacon and eggs, and weak coffee; lunch—lamb chop or meat course of some kind with green vegetables, a baked apple or other cooked fruit; dinner—vegetable soup, fish or rabbit, chicken or game, stewed onions,
spinach, salad with French dressing, and prune dip.

A course of this diet will soon give her a really good base for cosmetics, and home beauty treatment.

ROUND THE TOWN

Seen In Local Shops

Lane, Crawford have just got in some of the newest foundation garments, it really would not be fair to judge these delightful sheaths of crepe de chine and lace as
"stays."

"Junior Simplicity" the very latest Gossard creation, is a dream.
It has been designed for wear with backless evening frocks and though the lightest, sheerest, and prettiest thing imaginable is so marvelously cut that, without a single bone, it moulds ones figure into the best possible line. "Junior Simplicity" is moreover all you need to wear under your evening dress unless of course it's transparent, or you are sufficiently advanced in years to consider ease (warmth) before elegance. In the one garment you have brassiere, corset and panties.

"Miss Simplicity" sister of the above is made of silk artex material with a lace brassiere and is very lightly boned, otherwise there is little difference. Another delightful evening corset has a lightly boned diaphragm control and elastic sides. There are some nice belts and short corsets all very light in weight and as pretty as can be, with or without a slight boning.

Gordon's are now showing some really very smart English shoes in black and brown kid. Most of them are simple in shape, either court or dress style, and often a line or two of contrasting colour is used.

I hear that a new consignment of Raisers shoes is expected next week, which will include evening shoes in the new mat velvet in black, white and brown.

The Dolly Vardon Hat Shop is continuing their sale, and there is really not much new to tell you.
A few suits marked at half-price are left and there are some silk frocks which are a real bargain.
Lots of hats at "give away" prices of course, and I nearly forgot some adorable little blouses and fancy waistcoats which are awfully cheap now, in the sale and so useful.

Whiteaways sale continues till the end of the month. There are some real bargains in ladies' and children's shoes besides, of course, hundreds of other things. Upstairs in the furnishing department
I noticed that trunks and suitcases are reduced by from 25 to 50 per cent. There are some marvellous bargains in really good lengths (10 to 15 yards) of cretonnes and other furnishing materials. A
"humpty" is always a welcome price of furniture, never more so than in the cold weather when one can use it as a footstool or alternatively sit on it and really hug the fire.

Among the bargains in house
linen I noticed table-napkins, marked at $3.98 the dozen. They are not very fine of course but quite good enough for everyday or party use.

AN IRONING ECONOMY

When an electric iron is used, both time and electricity may be saved if the ironing is methodically arranged beforehand. Small things, such as lace, ribbons, and fancy handkerchiefs, need little heat and may easily be dealt with while the iron is warming up.
Heavy, damp articles and starched things should not be attempted until the iron is thoroughly hot. When these are finished the current may be switched off and the iron will still be hot enough for flannels and woollens, which only need pressing over and which are easily scorched if the iron is too hot.

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE'S NOTEBOOK

If a little lemon juice is added to the water used for mixing pastry it will make the pastry lighter and remove all taste of fat or lard.

Rub powdered borax on fruit stains, then pour boiling water through the fabric before washing and boiling it.

Baby

The danger of Improper Feeding

BABIES are frequently over-fed. Their capacity for food is very small—at birth 1 oz. and at 2 months 3 oz.
Remember also it is the amount of food digested that counts.

Do not feed baby just because he cries—probably the reason is indigestion from overfeeding, not hunger.
It is important to get the nature of the food right as well as the quantity.

SOME OF THE BEST WAYS WITH EGGS

FOUR DELICIOUS DISHES

Eggs are excellent with cheese. You can have cheese omelettes or cheese panakes, eggs stuffed with cheese; and poached, boiled or hard-boiled eggs with a cheese sauce.

Eggs in potatoes are delicious. You wash and brush the potato, prick it and take it with care, then cut a piece off one end or along one side, according to the shape of the potato and which way it will stand up best. Now scoop out the inside, beat this well in a basin with pepper and salt and a little butter. A little grated cheese may be added or omitted, as desired.

Half fill each potato skin with the potato mixture, break the necessary number of eggs one by one to a cup and then drop one into each half-filled potato, add a little cream or thin creamy sauce and put back into the oven till the eggs are just set. The same recipe is just as good for fillets of fish or almost any kind of flaked cooked fish, and the sauce and seasonings can be altered according to the contents of the larder or the demand of the moment.

Eggs "on the plate" are eggs baked in the oven in the same way as eggs in ramekins, and may take as many different forms, if not more. The difference is that you use much flatter little dishes, or larger oval dishes, or saucers.

Eggs baked "on the plate" with bacon are particularly good.

Butter several small or one large shallow dish, break the eggs and drop them carefully on top of the butter and arrange a thin rasher of bacon over each egg. These will need five or six minutes, and it may be as well to turn the bacon at half time.

A Spinach Dish.
If you like spinach cook it as usual, rub it through a sieve, season it with salt and pepper, stir in a fairly generous piece of butter and reheat.

Arrange a bed of the spinach on a buttered dish, pour a little melted butter over it, and make as many shallow depressions with the back of a spoon as there are eggs. Drop an egg into each depression and bake in the oven till the whites of the eggs are just set.

If you allow a tablespoonful of cooked and flaked kipper, blower, or smoked haddock; a tablespoonful of white sauce, and a little butter to each egg you can make a very interesting dish.

Butter the dish or dishes as usual. Mix the fish with the sauce, add seasoning if necessary, and a little finely chopped parsley. Break the egg on to the fish mixture and take till just set.

Scrambled Eggs
The secret of scrambling eggs successfully is to avoid cooking them for too long, writes Cattle-ring lives in the Daily Express.

Allow about an ounce of butter and a tablespoonful of milk to each egg—or two small ones. Beat the eggs with the milk and add pepper and salt. A few drops of Worcester sauce make a decided improvement.

Melt the butter in a small saucepan, pour in the egg mixture, and cook over a gentle heat, stirring all the time and taking the pan off the heat the moment its contents are creamy and golden.

If you want scrambled eggs for a luncheon or supper dish you can arrange them round or in the centre of stewed mushrooms, and grilled or fried liver mixed with a good thick gravy or brown sauce, or with a risotto mad with onion, tomatoes, rice, and cheese; with diced ham tossed in butter, with minced salt beef, or with flaked dried haddock.

Both hot and cold eggs are very good stuffed. For this they must be hard-boiled and carefully shelled. They can be served with the desired flavour.

Pounded anchovy, French dressing, and cream is one of the best known; crushed shrimps seasoned with lemon juice and a very little mayonnaise is another; very finely chopped celery and apple mixed with tomato pulp and cream or mayonnaise a third; purées of mushrooms, asparagus, cheese mixed with tomato, and things like cod's roe, flaked smoked fish, and fish or meat pastes are reasonable and desirable then be cut in half lengthway or alternatives.

A clever housewife should be able to make up all kinds of fancy and tasty hot hors d'oeuvres by using up any left-over fish, fowl, pork, game, eggs and vegetables such as asparagus, mushrooms, truffles etc. cooked in various delicate ways, or used as a garnish, or to make the following: baguets, bouches, croquettes, rissoles, petits pates, souffles, timbales, vol-au-vent, etc.

Chicken Patties with Mushrooms.

Cut up mushrooms in small pieces, there should be 1 cup; cook them in 1/2 cup butter for 1 minute, add 1/2 cup flour, 1/2 teaspoon salt and 1/2 teaspoon pepper, stir until butter and flour are well blended. Then pour on slowly 1 cup chicken stock and 1/2 cup cream; heat to boiling point; add 1 cup white meat chicken cut in 1/2 inch cubes and 1 cup green peas; when heated through use as filling in puff paste patty shells.

Potatoes a la Beige.

Take some rashers of streaky bacon, about 3 inches long, and halfcook them in a frying pan. Remove them to keep hot, and fry a finely chopped onion in bacon fat. Place in a saucepan as many (peeled) potatoes as you require with salt, pepper, and a large teaspoonful of mixed dried herbs. Place the bacon on top of the potatoes, and pour in just enough water to cover the whole. Simmer till potatoes and bacon are tender.

Apple Cream.

Two lb. apples, 1 lb. sugar, lemon rind, sugar, and water. Stew gently pint of cream or milk. Wash apples and cut them into pieces. Put them in a stewpan with the lemon rind, sugar and water. Stew gently until they are quite tender, then rub them through a hair sieve. Boil the cream or milk and add to it the apple pulp. Beat them thoroughly together and serve when cold in a glass dish.

CARROT AND RICE STEW

A carrot and rice stew is a pleasant and economical way of making short commons seem long.

For two large carrots you have a teaspoon of rice, a pint of water, an onion, a bunch of herbs, two ounces of butter or dripping, and plenty of salt and pepper.

Scrape the carrots, and cut them in thin slices. Peel the onion and slice thinly. Wash the rice and drain it. Melt the fat in a saucepan; add the carrots and onion and cook for a few minutes without browning. Add the water, salt and pepper, bunch of herbs and rice. Put the lid on the pan of casserole and stew for about an hour.

Take out the bunch of herbs, and any extra mushrooms, and add a little butter. Stir well and serve.

Hats are tilted at a smart angle
Bridg'g str.

SATINS REINSTATED

A lot of old textile favourites are returning to the evening mode. First and foremost is black satin, that most useful of all materials. Every couturier is making some version of the black satin evening gown, and a lot of it will be seen in the Spring, in the afternoon as well. Black taffeta is another popular fabric. Sometimes both satin and taffeta give themselves a modern air by adopting the cloqué surface that is causing such a furore at present. The new cloques resemble crinkles, but they are ever so much more practical, for they are woven with a straight backing and so they cannot pull out of shape as the real crinkles do.

BATH-MATS

When a cork bath-mat shows signs of warping or cracking it should be reinforced at once with strips of strong thin wood. These strips, with small holes ready pierced in them, should be fitted like a frame on each side of the mat and secured by a lacing of string, passing through the holes in the wood and through corresponding holes made in the cork mat with a red-hot awl.

EGYPTIAN DRAPERY

A slight back fullness is featured in some of Worth's creations—a movement that interests Lucien Lelong for evening and Brayer for afternoon. A modernized version of the Egyptian draped skirt, with the fullness concentrated in front, but without an upward lift, of the hem, is noted chez Vera Borea, Maggy Rouff and others.

Many creators keep the sides straight and slim, and introduce fullness both in the front and back. The Lucille Paray evening gown in orchid pink crinkled satin is a smart example of this treatment.

Draperies which merge into scarves or long ends of contrasting material which form movable panels on the skirt are good.

Garlands or sprays of flowers are useful both for fitting a very simple dress to certain moods and occasions and for giving variety to a modest wardrobe. Tiny fur capes or boleros can look extremely charming, too, and on cold nights can be very comforting.

Evening bags can match the shoes, the wrap, or the flowers. The best of them are all very plain in shape, but are sometimes fastened with an exquisite jewelled clasp, a cameo, or a bit of fine carving.

TO CLEAN YOUR JEWELLERY

HELPFUL HINTS

Pearls ought always to be kept in a velvet-lined box, for this helps to preserve their colour. If dust has collected between the beads rub them with a soft brush, and their lustre can then be restored by dipping them in magnesia powder. They can be left buried in the powder for a few hours and then, after shaking off the powder, they should be rubbed gently with a chamois leather.

Ivory beads can be cleaned by washing them in warm soapy water, then rinsing them and rubbing them, bead by bead, with a piece of cotton-wool dipped in hydrogen peroxide. Leave this on for a few minutes, and then rinse and dry the beads. All metals tarnish in contact with the air; dust soon clogs up the jewellery.

Rings set with precious stones should always be removed from the fingers before washing because water loosens the settings. You can wash gold ornaments in warm soapy water and gently rub them with a soft nailbrush. After rinsing place the ornaments in warm water to which a few drops of ammonia have been added and, finally, dry with a clean cloth. Then polish with jeweller's rouge moistened with ammonia. Silver ornaments can also be first washed and then polished with whitening moistened with methylated spirit. No moisture must ever be allowed to touch turquoise or pearls. Corals should never be washed in warm water.

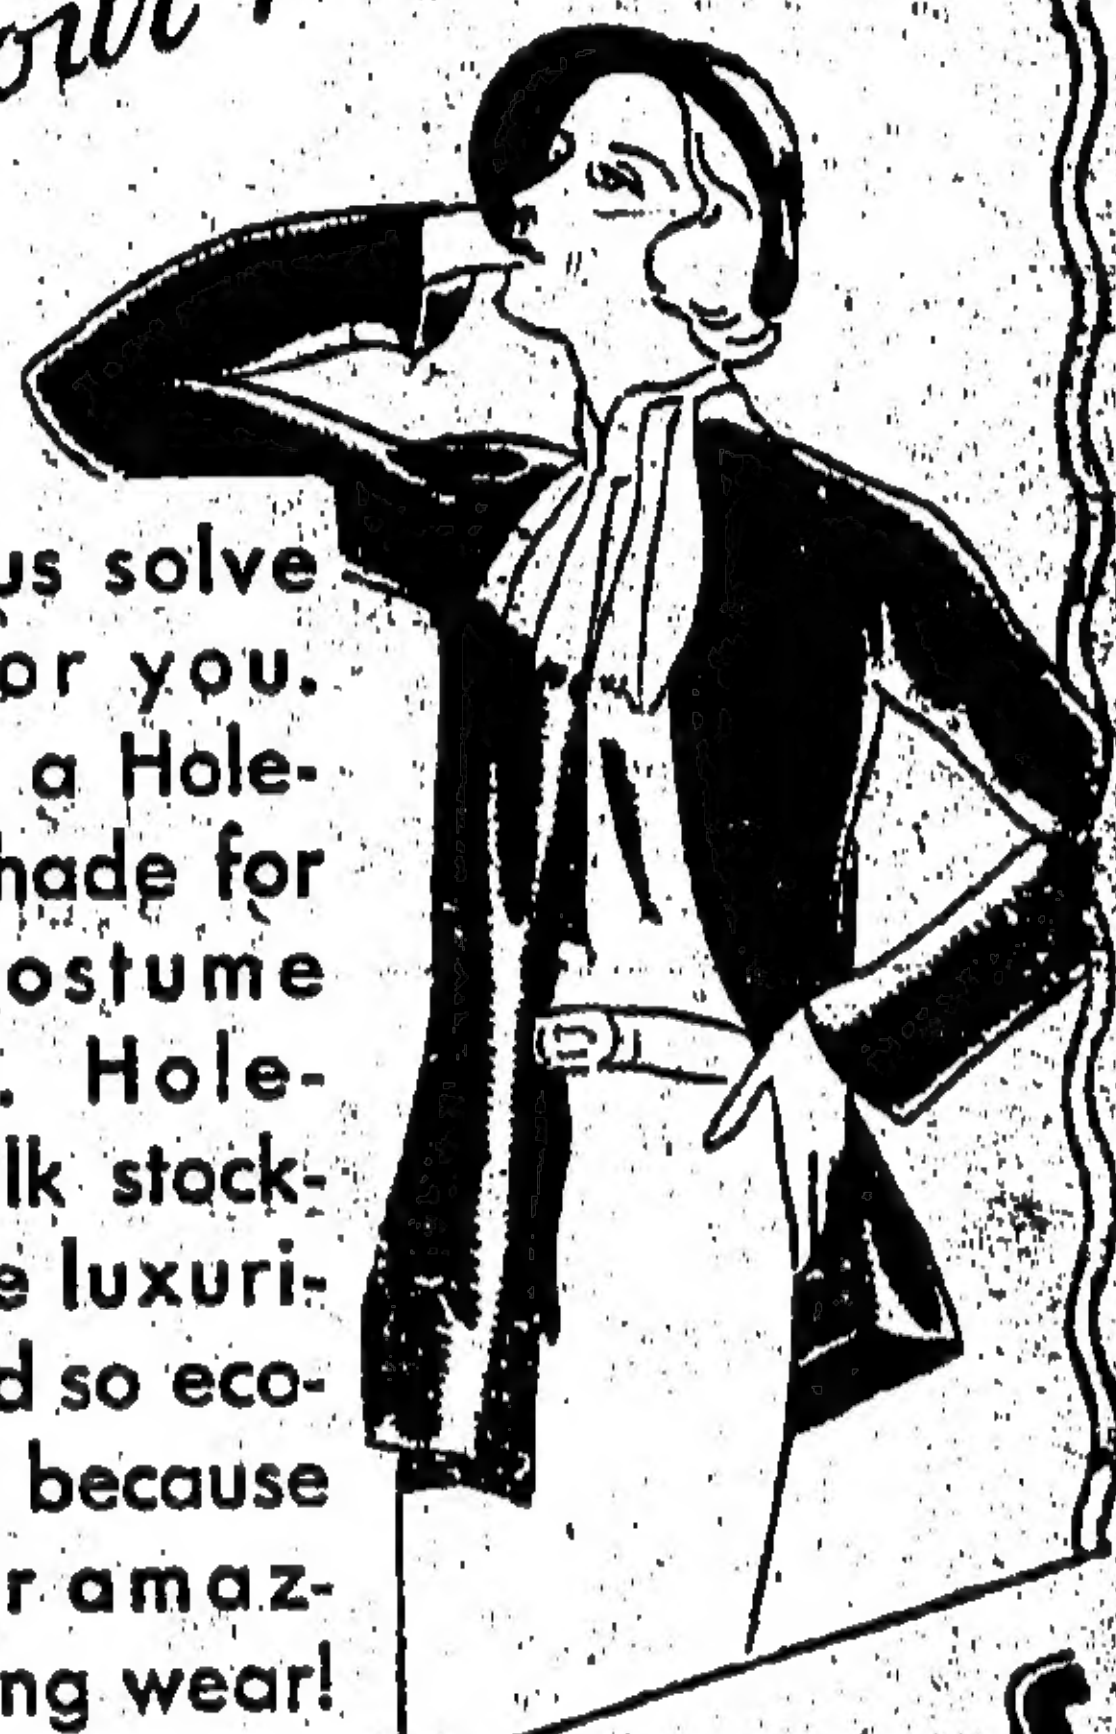

A FRUIT jelly is always a welcome delicacy. Cerebos Jelly Crystals are made from the purest ingredients—the juice of ripe fruit and the finest sugar. The result is always a perfect sweet.

Pictures In Hong Kong

"PACK UP YOUR TROUBLES"

Appropriate Film For Chinese New Year

LAUREL AND HARDY'S NEW COMEDY AT THE QUEEN'S

The management of the Queen's Theatre made a very appropriate selection when they decided to show "Pack Up Your Troubles" over the Chinese New Year holidays and the theatre was crowded yesterday at every performance and seats will no doubt be in great demand while this picture is being shown.

Laurel and Hardy have a big following in Hong Kong and there are some who can laugh by merely seeing a "still life" picture of them, so great is their talent for provoking mirth.

In "Pack Up Your Troubles" Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy give their "fans" something entirely new in the way of comedy.

Since the introduction of "talking" pictures many new comedians have sprung up and they provide good comedies too, but like Eddie Cantor, and the Woolsey-Wheeler combination, they have depended more on their speech and witticism to make laughter than upon their action. But Laurel and Hardy are quite different and their success is traceable more to their mannerisms and screen "stupidity" than to anything else. There is less chance of missing a joke in such a film than in one where the ear has to be on the alert all the time.

To try and tell the story of "Pack Up Your Troubles" would be an injustice to Laurel and Hardy and a waste of time. One must see it to appreciate how much fun and humour the producers have packed into the picture. Can anyone adequately put in writing what these two comedians would look like as garbage heavies in the army? or the laughter they provoked when they tried to evade an army recruiting sergeant by pretending to have but one arm?

The rest of the programme also is quite attractive. There is a Hearst newswreel, which is followed by a musical item and then the audience is put in the right humour to receive Laurel and Hardy by a short "Our Gang" Comedy, entitled "School's Out."

"SKY DEVILS"

AMAZING COMEDY OF THE AIR

A picture that took a year in the making and cost more than a half million dollars is "Sky Devils" which Howard Hughes, who made that famous spectacle, "Hell's Angels," is offering as the first comedy of the air.

"Sky Devils" is a lightning-fast comedy, based on the thrilling and romantic adventures of three American aviators during the World War. The leading roles are played by Spencer Tracy, William Boyd, George Cooper and Ann Ralston.

This is Producer Hughes' first comedy production since "Two Arabian Knights," a box-office sensation of four years ago. "Sky Devils" contains more laughs than the dough-boy opus, and in addition, is full of air scenes as spectacular as the most thrilling moments in "Hell's Angels."

An air-fleet of 65 planes was used in filming the sensational flying scenes in "Sky Devils," and in one sequence alone 60 ships are shown in thrilling combat above the clouds.

It is an audacious talent of three flying clowns who violate every rule of war to have a good time, and in the face of court-martial for disobedience accomplish so many rare and accidental feats of gallantry they are decorated for their impudent exploits.

The story of "Sky Devils," which comes to the King's Theatre on Sunday next has many unusual twists, and the dialogue sparkles with humour. It moves at a terrific tempo, from start to finish, and piles laugh upon laugh, and thrill upon thrill, as the action unfolds on the screen.

tion set against enchanting still life. Only Lubitsch could have achieved all these things without sacrificing the story's drama, comedy or romance.

Of course, the acting is perfect. Herbert Marshall confirms Lubitsch's opinion that he is destined to become one of the screen's greatest stars. He has about him that air of comforting reassurance which always brings the women fluttering round the box-office. Kay Francis and Miriam Hopkins run the feminine department of the picture.

TROUBLE IN PARADISE

"SEX WITH A SMILE"
SAYS LONDON CRITIC

Sex with a smile as only old Ernst Lubitsch can contrive it. If you have ever wondered why Hollywood pays him $300,000 a picture, "Trouble in Paradise" will set your doubts at rest.

An scenario department presented him with a frothy, fragile plot about the dilemma of a gentleman crook who schemes to rob a rich widow of her money only to find that she is ready to give him half. Just to add to the crook's difficulties there hovers about in the background his faithful accomplice and real girl friend, whose jealousy gets the better of her greed.

But the story in Lubitsch's deft hands becomes secondary to the treatment he gives it. The picture flows along like a stream of molten gold.

It's risqué, it's gay, it's packed with that brand of suspense which gets you sitting on the edge of the seat.

Study the tempo. Love calls for slowness and a lingering. Jealousy and greed move faster. Crime demands speed.

And from beginning to end the screen is suffused with beauty, the beauty which comes from perfect lighting, sneaking shadows, and action.

ORIENTAL MAGIC IN "KISMET"

OTIS SKINNER'S FINE PERFORMANCE

When "Kismet," First National's starring vehicle for Otis Skinner, opens on Sunday at the Queen's Theatre, the most distinguished of American romantic actors will be seen performing feats of sleight-of-hand that will amaze, amuse, and instruct, as the circus barkers would have it. In one sequence of the picture Mr. Skinner assumes the role of a Moorish magician performing before the Caliph, in order to obtain entrance to the palace.

In order to perfect several of the tricks necessary for the picture, Mr. Skinner had to work for several weeks under the tutelage of an expert sleight-of-hand artist. The feats he performs, in keeping with the eighth century setting of the picture, had to be of the sort practised by the magicians and fakirs of that time. As a result the tricks will be found to be absolutely new to American audiences. Some of them have never been performed outside of the Far East, and date back to the legendary antiquity of Oriental antiquity.

Supporting Mr. Skinner in the wide cast assembled for "Kismet" are Loretta Young, David Manners, Sidney Blackmer, Mary Duncan, Montagu Love and Edmund Breese. John Francis Dillon directed the production.

"TROUBLE IN PARADISE"

"DISILLUSIONED" KAY FRANCIS

Kay Francis has never had any illusions about the stage. A sophisticated little miss, she was only three years old when she practically broke up a play in which her mother was appearing by audibly refusing to take it seriously.

Kay told the story during a lull between scenes on the set of Ernst Lubitsch's "Trouble in Paradise," from the play by Lasso Aladar, currently at the King's Theatre, in which she is featured with Miriam Hopkins, Herbert Marshall, Charlie Ruggles and Edward Everett Horton.

Her mother, Katherine Clinton, was performing in a play on Broadway, Kay explains, and she herself was sitting in a box with another kid of her own age.

In the third act, a shot was fired. Miss Francis' mother threw up her arms, collapsed, and died, in accordance with the plot. Kay turned to her companion, and, in that naively loud voice which children use, remarked:

"Don't be afraid. That's my mama, and she's not really dead. She's only acting."

The audience heard it and burst into shrieks of laughter. The show was practically stopped until it died.

Kay got a good spanking. In "Trouble in Paradise" she's cast as a wealthy widow, picked by Miss Hopkins and Marshall, a pair of suave super-crooks, as a prospective victim.

"GIRL CRAZY" AT CENTRAL

BERT WHEELER AND ROBT. WOOLSEY

The two wisecracks, Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey are here again. Their latest picture "Girl Crazy" is at present showing at Central Theatre, and attracted large crowds on its opening day yesterday.

The film is almost a replica of "Rio Rita" in which the two comedians first became famous—a snappy jazz band, a bevy of Broadway beauties, Mexican señoritas, gunmen, etc.

The story in brief, tells of a girl-crazy youth, Danny who is sent to a western ranch by his father in order to cure him of his weakness for beautiful women. On his arrival at the ranch, he finds it too dull and decides to transform it into a playboy's paradise—jazz orchestras, show girls and a gambling concession.

Besides him on the ranch, however, there are also his rival in love, Ivan, and the sheriff annihilator, Lank.

Danny sends for his friends, Wheeler and Woolsey, to assist him; and in a game of cards Ivan wins $5,000. Lank harbours a desire to get his hands on the money, and Ivan sensing this, escapes to the border with the girl Molly who is also loved by Danny.

A wild chase across the desert, in which many funny situations, which could only be handled by these two comedians, arise until Lank and Ivan are put out of the way.

A strong cast supports the two comedians, including Eddie Quillan as the girl-crazy youth, Dorothy Lee, Arline Judge and Mitzi Green.

There is plenty of mirth, melody, romance and action in this picture, and on the whole it is quite appropriate with the Chinese New Year.

GRIFFINS SPEEDING UP: MANY GOOD GALLOPS CLOCKED YESTERDAY

TRENTBRIDGE'S RIVALS SHOW GOOD FORM

(BY "MORNING DEW")

Most owners, to give their stable hands a holiday to-day, galloped their ponies yesterday and some very impressive performances were seen. The attendance was somewhere in the nature of a record and those who went must have come away no better off than before because, among the Derby griffins there were many good gallops.

The Derby favourite Trentbridge was sent over a mile and although he went slowly over the first part of the journey he covered the last half mile in 1.03.2, finishing in 20.4

Prima Donna's gallop was the next best. This pony was sent over a mile and a quarter, his last mile being fairly fast and the finish, though not so good as Trentbridge's was undoubtedly just as convincing.

Coo Coo Bay also went over the full Derby distance and this time did some very fast work. Just study this pony's time and ask yourself if she is not the biggest danger to Trentbridge. The last mile was in 2.15, the last three quarters in 1.39, the last half in 1.04.1 and the last quarter in 30.1. What a mover! Comment is superfluous. Coo Coo Bay will be well in the picture when the Derby comes to be run.

Here is another gallop to worry over. Just take a look at Cossack's Beauty's figures. The pony went over the full mile and a half and admittedly the first three quarters were slow. But what about the last three quarters. They were respectively 35.1, 32.3 and 30 seconds! How many of this season's griffins have done such a good gallop?

Just in case you skip it, look over the time returned by The Got-wit. The pony finished on the bit!

The subs are as slow as ever and even now it is dangerous to make any sort of forecast. They appear on the whole a very backward lot.

Among the Australian ponies there was also some fast work. Rosy Morn did 2.03 for a mile, but started very much more impressively than he finished. The pony is a distinct puller and generally spends himself out before the straight is reached. His finish yesterday was very laborious. Dancing Jack went over a slightly slower mile but finished full of running as did Portia who was sent over a mile and a half and finished in 22.4. City of Brisbane is improving, but still appears to have a long way to go.

I have no hesitation in saying that Pharo is about the worst of this year's ponies. He has a long way to go before he will figure anywhere in the Australian events.

D. S. Li, the jockey for the Kong Bros' stable arrived in Hong Kong during the week and had been to the course on Tuesday and again yesterday. Quite a number of Shanghai jockeys are coming down including Dallas, Needa, Clark, Tung and Hill. Needa is the only new name among this lot. He is a very successful jockey up North and he will be riding for Mr. Sores at the annual race meeting.

The following times were clocked yesterday:

CITY BURIED IN SAND

TRIPOLI TREASURES EXCAVATED

Rome, Dec. 22.—The riches being dug out of the desert sands at Leptis Magna in Tripoli, seem inexhaustible. This ancient Phoenician seaport, which was destined to become the African emporium of the Roman Empire, is to-day returning to light after the centuries of obscurity and decay which followed the fall of the Empire.

ed architectural monuments and statuary of imperial magnificence. The extravagant decoration of the great market place is now emerging in its pristine glory, giving an idea of what Rome must have looked like in its heyday, as most of the buildings at Leptis Magna are architectural prototypes of Roman buildings.

The rostrum of the main forum of Leptis Magna has now been recovered, and the latest finds from there alone include the complete fragments of two colossal marble statues not yet identified, one of which is, however, believed to be a portrait of the Emperor Claudius.

The statues were broken by sand and other natural causes and not by vandalism.

A Diademonos by Polykleitos was found in pieces, and has now been put together.

A composite mosaic gives a symbolic picture of the Nile. The Nile God is seen with a cornucopia reclining on a hippopotamus representing the 16 cubits of water necessary to affect the annual providential overflow of the river banks for the irrigation of Egypt.

SAFETY OF LIFE AT SEA

BOARD OF TRADE ANNOUNCE NEW RULES

TO COME INTO FORCE THIS MONTH

London.—The Board of Trade announce the publication of new statutory rules relating to life-saving appliances which are to come into operation on January 1, 1933. The new rules include requirements applying to passenger steamers on international voyages which implement the provisions relating to life-saving appliances in the International Convention for the Safety of Life at Sea, 1929. They are, however, not confined to such vessels, but cover all classes of ships within the scope of the existing rules, and the latter will therefore cease to have effect on January 1, 1933. So far as concerns those classes of ships not covered by the International Safety Convention the requirements of the new rules are substantially the same as those of the existing rules, and as the provisions of the Convention relating to life-saving appliances were based to a large extent on the existing British rules for foreign-going and home trade passenger ships the requirements of the new rules for passenger steamers on international voyages and short international voyages differ from the requirements of the existing rules only in a few matters of detail. The opportunity has, however, been taken of rearranging and renumbering the rules and redrafting them so far as necessary to secure uniformity and perspicuity.

Classification of Ships.

An important feature of the Safety Convention is its classification of passenger ships into those employed on international voyages and those employed on short international voyages. The new rules adopt the Convention classification in this respect, and the two new classes thus formed cover all the vessels falling under the description of "foreign-going passenger steamers" in the existing rules and all those falling under the description of "home-trade passenger steamers" which are engaged on international voyages. They also cover ships abroad plying on international voyages or short international voyages which do not bring them to this country.

The requirements of the new rules as to life-saving appliances for passenger ships on international voyages generally are, except for some details, the same in all essentials as those applying to foreign-going ships under the existing rules. The requirements of the new rules as to life-saving appliances for passenger ships on short international voyages will apply to—

1.—Passenger ships on voyages between the United Kingdom and other countries within home-trade limits (these ships fall within Class I, home trade, in the existing rules).

2.—Passenger ships on short international voyages to or from the United Kingdom, which include ports outside home trade limits (these ships fall within Class I, foreign-going, in the existing rules).

3.—Passenger ships on short international voyages abroad, which do not bring them to the United Kingdom.

Lifeboat Accommodation. The new rules require that a passenger steamer engaged on a short international voyage shall be provided with lifeboat accommodation up to the minimum capacity specified in column D of the table set out in the first schedule to the rules (subject to the limitation that lifeboats need not be provided for more than the total number of persons which the ship carries); and that if further provision beyond the capacity specified in column D is required, additional lifeboats or approved life rafts or approved buoyant apparatus shall be provided to the satisfaction of the Board of Trade, so that the accommodation provided shall be sufficient for the total number of persons which the ship carries. The general lines on which the Board propose to act under this rule are—

1.—That on home trade ships lifeboats, so far as may be necessary to accommodate all on board, shall be provided up to at least the minimum capacity of column D (which is practically the same as the minimum capacity required by the existing rules), and thereafter the shipowner may provide any further accommodation required in the form of approved life rafts or buoyant apparatus (i.e., there is no alteration in existing practice).

2.—That on ships on short international voyages to or from the United Kingdom, which include ports outside the home trade limits the normal provision should, as at present, be readily available boats to accommodate all on board, but in any particular case where it is claimed that the substitution of life rafts or buoyant apparatus for some of the additional lifeboats (i.e., those in excess of the capacity required by column D) would give a more effective equipment of life-saving appliances than the provision of lifeboats for all on board, the case is to be referred to the Board for consideration.

3.—That in the case of ships on short international voyages abroad which do not bring them to the United Kingdom, each individual case in which accommodation beyond the lifeboat accommodation specified in column D of the table is required will be dealt with on its merits, having regard to all the circumstances, including such factors as the number of lifeboats that could be carried so as to be readily available, the number of the crew which would be available to deal with the boats, and the possibility of buoyant apparatus or life rafts providing a more effective equipment of life-saving appliances than the provision of additional lifeboats beyond the capacity specified in column D.

Ships Built Before July, 1931. The new rules will apply in full to all ships the keels of which are laid after July 1, 1931. Passenger steamships built before that date may be exempted from requirements of the rules if the Board of Trade are satisfied that the requirement is either impracticable or unreasonable in the case of that steamer.

A supplement to the instructions as to the survey of life-saving appliances, 1929, will be issued in the course of a few days explaining the alterations resulting from the Safety Convention which have been made in the classification of ships for the purposes of the rules, and stating the action that is to be taken as regards the application of the new rules to existing ships.

wherever and whenever you buy

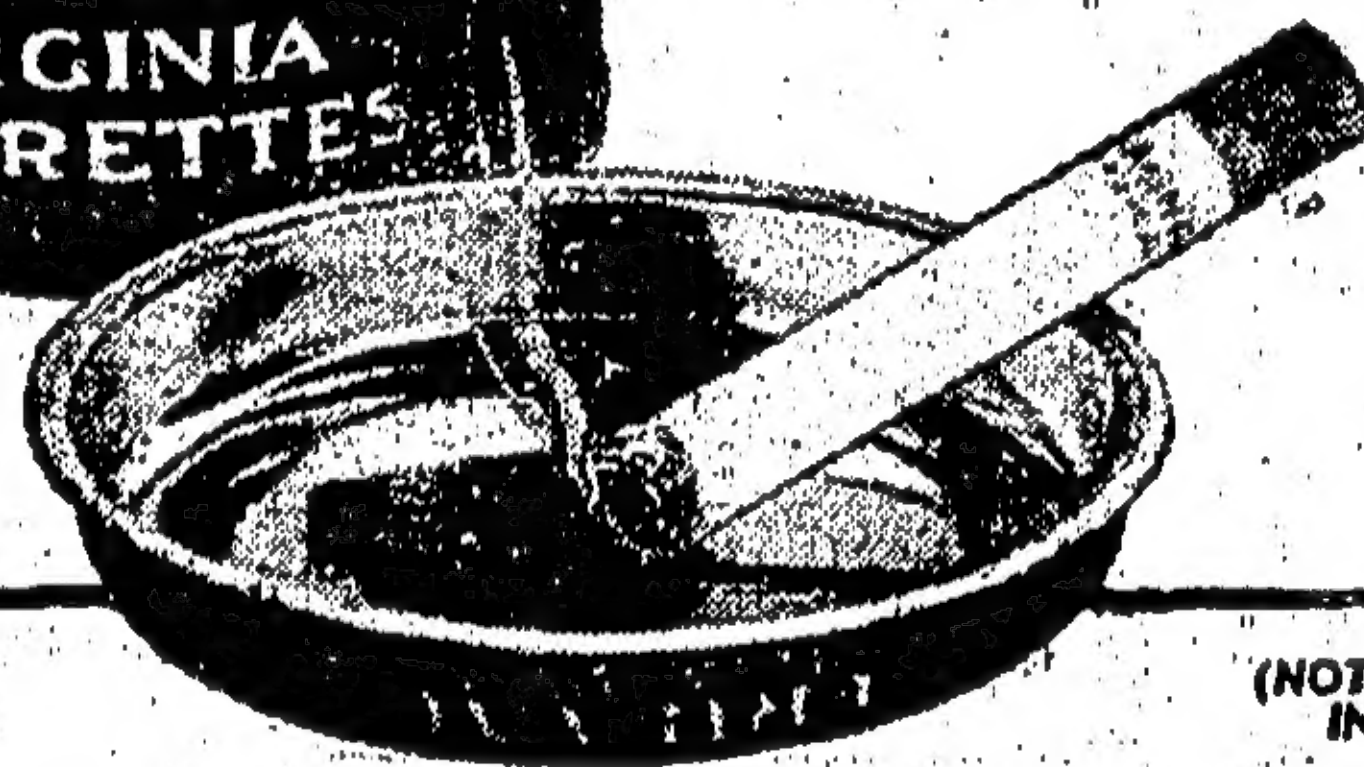

CORK-TIPPED
IN RED TINS

When you pull this rubber-Tab listen for the air rushing into the tin. The lid then lifts off easily.

The Craven "A" "50" tin is designed to be of real use in many ways
when empty. No cutter needed. No jagged edges.
Steel lining lid.

CRAVEN PLAIN CIGARETTES

Craven Plain Cigarettes
are for smokers who want the equivalent of Craven
"A" value and character
but who prefer a "plain"
Cigarette to a cork-tipped
one.

Craven Plain Virginia Cigarettes are packed in the hermetically sealed "TRU-VAC" tins of 50 and, like Craven "A," they are always fresh... THEY NEVER VARY.

(NOT CORK-TIPPED
IN GREEN TINS)

THE "TRU-VAC" Tin is a sure guardian of the invariably fine smoking conditions of CRAVEN "A" Cigarettes. Condition is vital. Cigarettes too dry smoke harshly, and cause throat irritation. Over-moist, they become hot and "sappy."

Hitherto, it has not been possible to maintain, outside the Factory, the moisture standard which manufacturers consider just right... but in the "TRU-VAC" Tin Craven "A" Cigarettes are always Factory-fresh. THEY NEVER VARY. Wherever you buy CRAVEN "A" you get them FRESH. The "TRU-VAC" Tin is an exclusive, protective air-tight container which definitely imprisons Factory-freshness until the vacuum seal is broken. (See top right hand picture.)

Craven Plain Cigarettes—the "plain" counterpart of Craven "A"—are also packed in the "Tru-Vac" Fiftys. Both these fine Virginia brands are made in London at Arcadia Works, the World's most Hygienic Manufactory of Cigarettes where leaf-selection, blending, manufacturing, cleansing and conditioning are all co-ordinated to produce the smooth, pleasing, satisfying Cigarette which smokers rarely forsake.

EVERYMAN'S PSYCHOLOGY

II. AM I A SOUL OR A PSYCHE?

(BY FATHER G. BYRNE S.J.)

When a weight falls on my foot I feel it; I feel it as distinctly affecting my foot and no other part of my body. When, on a hot day, I take a cool drink, I feel relief in my parched mouth. When a friend snaps out at me a cutting remark I feel it. In the first and the last case I may say that I feel hurt, yet it is clear that the "feeling" and the "hurt" have different meanings in each case. A poultice may be very soothing for my bruised foot, but I should have to hunt a long time to find a spot of my wounded feelings on which to clap it! Now in the midst of such diversity there is something which always remains the same, the "I" conscious of the various experiences. When all the experiences have passed, "I," the "I," which seems changeless in the midst of unceasing change, can look back and collect in a wonderful memory film the experiences of yesterday, though the yesterday be years. It can sorrow again with the sorrows of childhood and laugh with childhood's joys: I may lose a great deal of the body—eyes, hands, legs for instance—with which the "I" was so closely linked, and on the use of which it depended so much: the loss is a handicap but I never for a moment doubt that the barque is still there: though the waters be gone, "I am "I" in spite of all that. Herein lies the central problem of Psychology.

They called him the Soul. Men began to ask themselves what is it in man that parades as "I," that claims as its own all that happens to man, as well as all that goes to make him up, speaking of "my" pains, "my" sorrows, "my" thoughts, "my" brain, "my" body. In the main the answer was that, though the body had its little share of the "I," the real gentleman "I" who received you in his drawing-room, who invited you to dinner, who made speeches at you, who was responsible for a hand striking you, was quite different from the body. They called him the Soul; at least that was the word commonly used in the English language. Now-a-days, learned men prefer the word Psyche. It is not very easy to say why. Perhaps the modern fashion of dress might offer some explanation. There is something substantial in the word Soul, as we roll it out. It is quite capable of bearing the burden of Victorian fashions and claiming for itself the high-bred qualities of spirituality and immortality with which it was generally endowed. Psyche fits off the lips before it can be substantially clad, and so it is more popular with the type of mind that prefers to watch a pie in the baking than to eat a baked one. At any rate, the word is a Greek one and; for the Greeks who used it, it meant pretty much the same as Soul means to us. The word Psychology simply meant reasoning about, or trying to find out as much as we could about, the Psyche or Soul.

Some Scholars said: "Some scholars rose up and said: 'there is no Soul, there is only a body with a wonderful brain in a not so wonderful brain box.' But they still kept on using the word Psychology, though their Psyche had become so unsubstantial a thing that they could blow it about in all directions from their laboratory pipes, as when they were younger they blew soap bubbles. So it came to pass that, as the Professor of Psychology in the London University writes in a book published this year: "Psychology is still a science in the making rather than a finally established one. This is indicated by the lack of agreement upon the exact definition of the subject." At any rate it is called the New Psychology. We might, perhaps, complain of the term New Psychology if it be still only in the making; for though a man freely talks about his new-suit before he has paid for it, he does not so talk until the pieces are stitched together. However, we have accepted the New Art, the New Teaching, the New Education, and even the New Children; so it would be unreasonable to give the cold shoulder to the New Psychology.

The Old Psychology. To understand it we must know something about the Old Psychology. Those who especially developed the Old Psychology were the mediaeval thinkers—and they did think: what is more they thought clearly. (Incidentally we may mention that the Old Psychology is still very much alive. There are lectures on it for the London University, and for many places besides). The mediaevalists founded their system on the ideas of the eminent Greek thinkers, Plato and Aristotle. For them soul and body, in spite of a very close union, were quite distinct and separable; in fact, at the moment we call death, body and soul were separated. The "I" which interests us was really the soul, and the soul survived the decay of the body, still bearing with it in an even clearer way all the treasured store of past experiences. They called it a spirit which had nothing in common with matter such as the body is. Its way of acting was conceived as quite different from the body's way of acting. The laws of space and time had no natural hold on it. You can measure the body with a tape, as your tailor does; you can time the movements of your lips or of your fingers with a watch, but you could not find the birth of a spirit in inches, nor pigeonhole its movements by your calendar days. In his Dream of Gerontius, Newman, a disciple of the Old Psychology, beautifully expresses the idea.

"Not so with us in the immaterial world. But intervals in their succession are measured by the living thought alone. And grow-or-wane-with its intensity."

(Note: 1. Those who would pursue this theme will find interesting pages in Sir John Adams' Everyman's Psychology and in Dinner's What We Live By.

OLD CAMPAIGNERS FOREGATHER

IN UNION CHURCH MANSE DRAWING-ROOM

A party of old campaigners of the Great War gathered round the drawing-room fire of the Manse of Union Church, Kowloon, on Tuesday evening to exchange war experiences for the benefit of the Young People's Society.

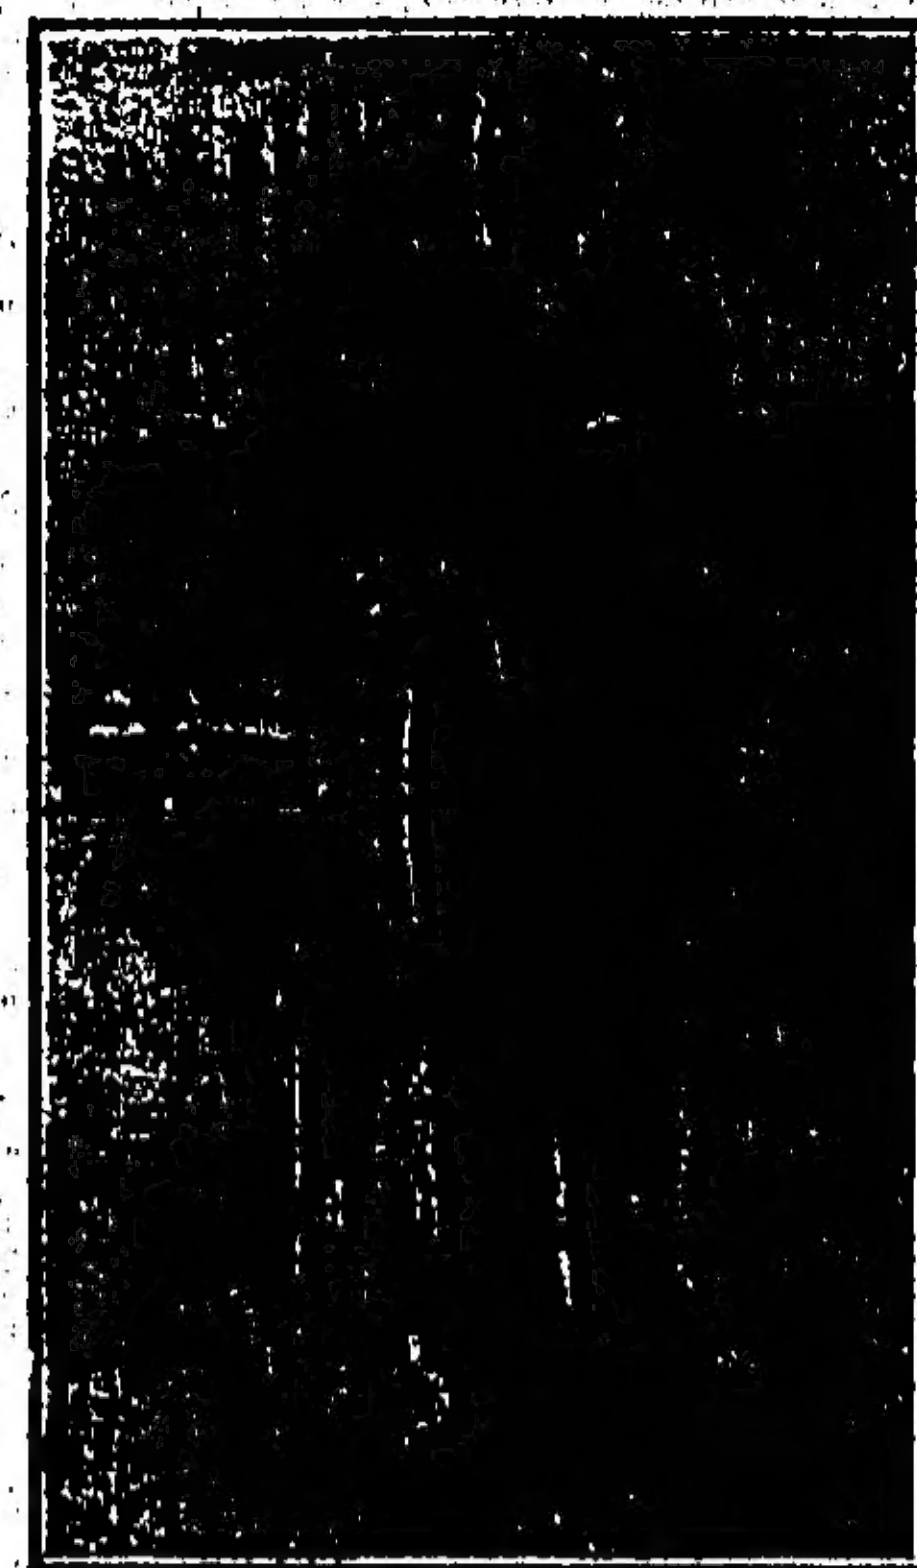

The first speaker was a "P. T. Wallah," a "super" "P.T.W." in fact—one who had trained hundreds of "P.T." instructors and thousands of soldiers in training camps in the American Expeditionary Force. It was interesting to get his special point of view, he said he found the work trying. His comrades-in-arms assured him that they had found his efforts trying too.

The next speaker was a different of the Blue Water School: one who was in the Navy throughout the War and whose principal experiences centred round Scapa Flow, the Battle of Jutland and the Dover Patrol. His job in the battle of Jutland was to make electrical repairs if the ship was hit, and he had an opportunity of seeing the battle for ten minutes only. He came on deck to see the ship surrounded by smoke, and he saw the ship full of men, most of them unharmed and full of the pride of life, may be sent in ten minutes to a watery grave, if the ship is hit in a vital part. The speaker mentioned the loss of H.M.S. Vanguard when it sank in harbour, whether by submarine action or mine is not known. Everyone on board was lost except one man who was blown bodily off the ship into the sea and picked up some distance away, and another man who was in his hammock, but the hammock was blown off its hooks and out of the ship with him in it, and he escaped alive.

An Ordnance man attached to the Artillery, whose job it was to do running repairs to guns, spoke next. In a paper of much literary merit (he modestly refused to let it be printed), the writer revealed himself as a student of men, religion and psychology, and some of his observations recalled Robinson Crusoe's philosophising upon his gate on the desert island.

An infantry man who became a Company Commander brought the meeting nearest to the war as seen at close quarters in the trenches. He had the extraordinary fortune to be wounded three times during the war, but only once by enemy fire. On one occasion he was under a barrage from his own guns and another was fired upon by his own men. His stories of the Battle of the Somme in 1916, of the shortage of shells and of March 1918, were thrilling and terrible. The lighter side was an account of the farewell to the beloved Division of the 1st Division, O'Brien (or some such name), a gentleman who was being sent home on three months' leave as a preliminary to finding him a job in which he was not endangered by his lack of grey matter. ## CHINESE NEW YEAR

SENSIBLE interest in any sympathy with each others manners and customs lies at the foundations of Hong Kong's prosperity. In this Colony we show, though the world takes little notice, that peoples of all races, creeds and customs can live in close proximity and not be irked by differences that would appear equally intolerable to villagers in England and Portugal, China and India, respectively. Therefore we keep Christmas, European New Year and Chinese New Year as public holidays, giving each community in turn every chance for the performance of rites and duties proper to the occasion. The European view of Chinese New Year is summed up in one very happy phrase, "It's their Christmas" and DYER BALL says of the occasion in "The Chinese at Home," "then everyone becomes a child again and plays and enjoys himself to the utmost."

The National Government is, of course, seeking to transfer the festival from the Lunar to the Solar start of the year. This is not the place to discuss the many pros and cons of a decision, taken neither lightly nor without weighty reasons and that can only be effected over the course of many years. Our Canton correspondent points out that while in that city the government offices are to remain open to-day and work to proceed as usual, even officials will probably observe the old-time customs in the privacy of their homes. Among the general populace things go on as before. The decrees against cracker firing, the sale of

But Chinese New Year, like other customs, is not what it was. Here in Hong Kong it may well be celebrated long after it has sunk to comparative, or even absolute insignificance in Canton, but Hong Kong was a pioneer in modification. For years now, the long-drawn celebration has narrowed down, concentrating almost into one day and the eve of that day. The New Year season, reflected in shops and the home atmosphere, is more in the nature of the European Christmas season than the old New Year of the Chinese Empire. Some firms may observe a three or even five days interlude, but not a few of the poorer shops have their shutters down for a few hours of the festival day and are busy immediately before and after.

Chinese New Year would seem to have taken on new life in remodelled form. But the modern world eats up holidays. Europe's Christmas was never as long a matter as Chinese New Year, for there was some abatement before Twelfth Night, but the Saint's days, including the local patrons, as well as the great red-letter days, were numerous enough.

These have gone as far as public observance is concerned; even Michaelmas, with its harvest suppers, has gone the way of Ascension Day, and we have in their place Bank Holidays, plentiful in Hong Kong, but scanty enough in England. Chinese New Year one can say, is falling into line with the twentieth century idea of a holiday, and shorn of much of the old time ritual it may still be observed by many generations to come.

ADMIRAL KELLY AT MANILA

HOSPITABLE WELCOME AND MANY FUNCTIONS ARRANGED

Manila, Jan. 10.—Full military honours were accorded Admiral Sir Howard Kelly, K.C.B., C.M.G., M.V.O., commander-in-chief of the British Asiatic Fleet, upon his arrival here yesterday morning aboard H.M.S. Kent, flagship of the fleet, which comes on an official 12-day visit to Philippine waters. The British war vessel arrived in port shortly after 8 o'clock yesterday morning. As she entered Manila bay she rendered a 21-gun salute to the flag and was answered by a similar salute from the battery at Fort Santiago.

Admiral Kelly and officers of the Kent were greeted in the bay by Mr. Thomas Harrington, local British consul general and representative of the Governor-General, the commanding general of the Philippine Department and naval officials.

At 10.30 yesterday morning, Admiral Kelly, accompanied by Commodore G. Layton, R.N., Lieutenant-Commander L. A. H. Wright, R.N. and Mr. Thomas Harrington, consul general, called at Malacanang to pay respects to Governor General Theodore Roosevelt. A brief courtesy call was then made on Mayor Thomas Earnshaw, followed by a courtesy call at 11.30 a.m. on Major General E. E. Booth, commanding general of the Philippine Department, at Fort Santiago.

At Fort Santiago Admiral Kelly received full honours, consisting of a guard of honour of one company of Infantry, commanded by Lieutenant T. N. Tarpley, and the usual ruffles, flourishes and march.

Following a salute of 17 guns from the battery at Fort Santiago, Admiral Kelly called on General Booth in his office at Department Headquarters, and then returned to his ship.

At 11 o'clock this morning, Major-General Booth will return the visit of Admiral Kelly on board H.M.S. Kent.

The Kent will remain in port for 13 days, during which time a series of entertainments will be tendered in honour of the visitors. Before returning to China waters, the Kent may make brief calls at Cebu, Iloilo, Batavia and French Indo-China.

This noon a luncheon will be tendered by the local British community in honour of Admiral Kelly and his staff at the Manila Club. The hockey team of H.M.S. Kent will play an exhibition match with the team of the Nomads Sporting Club this afternoon. Tomorrow evening a dinner-dance will be held in honour of the visitors at the Manila Club.

Saturday evening Governor General Theodore Roosevelt will tender a dinner at Malacanang for Admiral Kelly while General Booth will tender him a dinner Monday evening.

Called Back.

An amateur musician had been interrupted while labouring unhappily through the preliminary run of a Bach fugue. He turned furiously on the interrupter and threatened to have him ejected from the hall. ## Wolves Leaving Russia.

Films for Women Only?

The formation of a private company, Women's Picture Corporation, Ltd., to carry on the business of film producers is announced in "Jordan's Register." The Dowager Lady Baglan, one of the directors, said to a Press representative.

"Our object is to produce films to which parents can take children without fear."

"We want to eliminate all themes which are unsavoury. For instance the films for which we will be responsible will not have any sex angle. They will be specially designed to please children and will be wholesome fare."

This Year's Boat Race 1933.

This year's Boat Race will be rowed over the original course from the University Stone, Putney, to Mortlake, a distance of four and a half miles.

The piles on the west side of Putney Bridge, which necessitated a new starting-point for this year's race, have been removed. Last March the race was begun from the London Rowing Club, the course being shortened by about 400 yards.

The widening of Putney Bridge is nearing completion, and it is anticipated that all the piles will be removed before April 1, the day of the race.

Lady Astor's New Religion.

New York.—Before sailing for England in the Berengaria, Lady Astor announced that she had become a Christian Scientist.

Lady Astor, who was the first woman to sit in the Imperial Parliament, is an American by birth, a teetotaler, a non-smoker, an early riser, and Mother of six children.

Assessing Cambridge Talent.

The number of men who complete three years at Cambridge University without having made up their minds what they wish to do for the rest of their lives is considerable. Such, and many others, have been indebted to the secretary of the Cambridge University Appointments Board, Mr. H. A. Roberts, who died last month.

This eminent organiser, from whose round figure one would never have guessed that during the 19th century he had rowed at under 10 stone, had a curiously swift way of appraising applicants for posts.

The following account of his dialogue with graduates, possibly apocryphal and certainly pre-war, is at any rate typical of him:

"D'you get a first?"
"No."
"D'you get a Blue?"
"No."
"Ten planting in Ceylon?"

Romance of Two Meals.

Sir Frederick Maurice recently told a good war story. Ten days before Caporetto he made a tour of the Italian defences in the Dolomites with General Cadorna. After a hard morning's work he was taken to a chalet for luncheon. The menu, from the Viennese rolls and fresh butter to the hocks and brandy, was superb. Sir Frederick expressed surprise that so marvellous a meal could be served so close to the trenches.

"Quite simple," said Cadorna. "This chalet is the shooting box of the Austrian Emperor. The man who prepared the meal is the imperial chef."

Sir Frederick was grateful. He asked if he could see the chef, shook hands with him and congratulated him.

The story has a sequel. A few years ago Sir Frederick's sister, arriving to stay with friends in the South of France, was welcomed with a superbly-cooked supper. "Our chef," her hosts explained, "has made a special effort on your behalf. He's cooked for your family before. He says your brother was the only gentleman he met during the war."

LOOKING BACK 75 YEARS

In continuation of our narrative of the progress of affairs at Canton, we give the following from the Friend of China Supplement Extra—

January 8:—The Commissioners, viz., Colonel Holloway, M. le Capitaine de Chenet, and Mr. Harry Parkes, charged with the supervision of the Government, took up their quarters, with a strong guard, at the Foyen's (Place of the Governor), and proceeded to the work on which they have since been engaged, viz., the issuing of proclamations to the surrounding country, inviting people to return and assuring them of protection in their persons and property. Hong Kong Daily Press, January 26, 1858.

LOOKING BACK 50 YEARS

I am often asked by native gentlemen the probable cost per li of forming a good railroad. To such I will answer publicly that an average of Tls. 12,000 is about the amount to be reckoned, with cheap Chinese labour at hand. This, after some practice, might possibly be reduced to Tls. 10,000 per li. But the very best thing to do my worthy Chinese friends, is to try for yourselves. And let me advise you to begin with a short length, where a small outlay of capital is sure to yield immense returns. Make a railroad from Peiping to Tientsin, and give those fastidious Conservative members of the Government an opportunity of seeing and trying the iron-road, with its comfortable carriages drawn by iron horses, and let them verify for themselves all that they have heard about them. The iron-keepers along the line will, however, probably offer some objection to the arrangement. Hong Kong Daily Press, Jan. 23, 1883.

There was a large attendance at the annual distribution of prizes held at Queen's College yesterday. Undated on Previous Column.

WAR DEBTS MAY BE DISCUSSED

AMERICA INVITES DEBTOR NATIONS TO CONFERENCE

[BRITISH WIRELESS SERVICE.]

Rome, Jan. 24. The United States invitation to Italy to discuss war debts, the first communication on the subject passing between the two governments, has given great satisfaction in all quarters here.

It is unofficially stated that other important issues such as the gold standard and tariffs are likely to be discussed.

A very strong delegation will be sent to Washington. It will probably be headed by the Finance Minister and it will include a number of well-known Italian economists.

The delegation will undoubtedly urge Signor Mussolini's policy of the "clean slate."

No Question of Refusal.

London, Jan. 24. While the Government is still considering the American debt invitation from all angles, there is no question, of course, of a refusal.

The Government's attitude towards the debt problem was restated today by Mr. Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, in the course of a speech at Leeds.

He said that the British Government believed that the total cancellation of all war debts and reparations was the best thing that could happen to the whole world "but if that is going further than American opinion is yet prepared to accept, we shall gladly discuss with our American friends, whenever they are ready to receive our representatives, the lines upon which an agreement can be reached."

Essential Conditions.

But when the agreement is being negotiated, he said, two things would have to be borne in mind, (1) that the settlement to be reached must be final and (2) the settlement reached must not involve a resumption of any claims upon Germany for reparations, which it was the object of the Lausanne Conference of last year to bring to an end.

These two things, said Mr. Neville Chamberlain, are considered to be essential features of any settlement to which Britain can agree.

Prosperity at Stake.

He added that to disturb the Lausanne settlement would be to destroy for an indefinite period all prospect of an agreement on matters affecting the happiness and prosperity of Europe and the world at large.

U.S. Prepared for Discussion.

[BRITISH WIRELESS SERVICE.]

Rugby, Jan. 24. Press reports from Washington state that the Roosevelt Administration will be prepared to discuss war debts with all those nations who paid instalments on December 15. In addition to Great Britain other nations who paid on that date were Italy, Czechoslovakia, Finland, Latvia and Lithuania.

HAIL INSTEAD OF FAREWELL

Y.M.C.A. CHIEF NOT ALLOWED TO RESIGN.

London.—Sir Henry McMahon, for several years president of the Y.M.C.A., went to a council meeting of the association last month prepared to say farewell, as he had sent in his resignation. But the delegates refused to let him go.

Invitation cards to a reception that followed the meeting bore the name of the new president (Mr. R. Austin Pilkington). Farewell speeches had been prepared, and a bouquet of chrysanthemums had been ordered, to present to Sir Henry and Lady McMahon.

"This is most irregular," said Sir Henry. "You have prepared all your farewell speeches to me, and I have prepared mine, and now we suddenly find that I am not leaving after all."

He indicated the floral decorations on the tables, and added: "I believe those flowers were originally intended to be my funeral wreath, but I am glad you were able to make good use of them when you found that I was not going to provide you with the corpse."

Princess Helena Victoria, president of the women's auxiliary of the Y.M.C.A., received the guests.

JACK JOHNSON BANNED FROM PARISIAN ARENAS

Paris, Jan. 18.—The French Boxing Federation banned a boxing exhibition scheduled for Friday night between Jack Johnson, former world heavyweight champion, and Maurice Brisseau, French champion.

Johnson was forbidden to box because he has once served a prison term in the United States.

ANGLO-PERSIAN OIL DISPUTE

SIR JOHN SIMON TO ARGUE BRITISH CASE

[BRITISH WIRELESS SERVICE.]

Rugby, Jan. 24. AT Geneva to-day the League Council appointed Dr. Benes, Czechoslovakia, rapporteur on the dispute between the British Government and the Persian Government regarding the repudiation by the latter of the Anglo-Persian Oil Company's contract, instructing him to get into touch with both parties and report back to the Council.

The matter will be taken up by the Council on Thursday, when the British Government's case will be presented by Sir John Simon who left London for Geneva this afternoon.

The Persian delegation at Geneva has already revealed some of the arguments by which they hope to justify the repudiation of the contract and their contention is that as the Company ought to have had recourse to the Persian courts, the case is not one with which the League ought to deal.

Misunderstanding.

From information available, however, it appears that many of the statements contained in the Persian Government's memorandum are based on misunderstanding and it is hoped the majority of the points in the dispute will easily be cleared up upon explanation in the conciliatory atmosphere of the League.

The British delegation is reserving its arguments for Thursday's Council meeting, when Sir John Simon will justify the action of the British Government in bringing the case before the League. This course of action, it is hoped in London, will produce an amicable and equitable settlement beneficial to both parties.

Surprise in London.

Some surprise has been caused in London by the statement in the Persian Government's memorandum that the Anglo-Persian Oil Company have confined extraction of oil for over thirty years to an "Area of little more than one square mile" and the contention that the Company had failed to develop their concession to the fullest possible limits. Actually the area of the Company's Persian oilfields, from the whole of which oil is now being extracted, amounts to about 160 square miles. The Company has technically examined over 150,000 square miles, drilled 140,000 feet, carried out 350 geological surveys and spent 224 millions on work of this character outside the two proved producing oilfields.

TRANSPORT MINISTRY TO GIVE GRANT

[BRITISH WIRELESS SERVICE.]

A grant of sixty per cent. of the cost would be made by the Ministry. It is suggested that the question of corbelling should be referred to the Fine Arts Commission.

NAVAL BASE RUMOURS

DENIED BY JAPAN AT GENEVA

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY]

London, Jan. 24. THE News Chronicle Geneva correspondent says that the minutes of the Mandates Commission disclose that a secret meeting of the Commission was held on November 11, regarding rumours that Japan is establishing a naval base in a Pacific Island.

The Japanese reply stated the report was unfounded and the Government does not contemplate establishing such a base. It explained the Japanese harbour improvements costing £100,000 at Saipan and Pagan are necessary on account of the inadequacy of harbours in view of the increased sugar exportation.

SCOTLAND YARD IN 1932

Fewer Smash And Grab Raids

36 UNSOLVED MURDERS IN FOUR YEARS

The most satisfactory feature of the activities of Scotland Yard during 1932 is the announcement that there has been far less serious crime than in any year since the War.

There has also been more prevention of crime, while the closer co-operation between Scotland Yard and the provincial police has upset many a plan for burglary at country houses.

There is still, however, a legacy of unsolved murders dating from 1920. From that year up to the present time there have been 36 unsolved murders. In 1932 there were five—two in London and three in the country; that of Joseph Swayne at Skipton, Market, Mr. and Mrs. Keen at Sharncliffe, Godalming, and Sidney Marston at Birmingham.

Of the 21 murders investigated by the "Yard" during the year, only two remain unsolved—the murder of Mrs. Dora Lloyd in a flat at Maida Vale in February, and Miss Susan Emberton, a housekeeper, at Croydon, in March.

In the area of the London City Police only two murders were reported and both were solved within 48 hours, the murderer in each case being hanged.

Jewellery Thiefs.

There have been fewer smash and grab raids, and few big jewellery thefts, the largest being £19,000 worth of jewellery from Messrs. Gardner and Co. of Holborn.

For the most part, the year's crime "excitement" took the form of searches for escaped prisoners from Leicester, Nottingham, Dartmoor, Brixton and Paddington.

Experienced police officers hold the view that many young people are taking to crime—mainly owing to the depressed state of industry.

The "Yard" during the year has undergone more changes than ever before. The boundaries of various divisions have been altered, and in the Criminal Investigation Department many young detectives been promoted.

Another feature of the year was the introduction of a scheme which provided the Special Constabulary with the opportunity of working with the regular police. Its usefulness was proved when trouble occurred in London during unemployed demonstrations. The "specials" patrolled outside areas and took over traffic duties, thus relieving the regular police for duty in connection with the demonstrations.

MR. BREWER TO GET ONLY £45

PORTUGUESE COURT CUTS £1,800 INDEMNITY

Lisbon.—The indemnity to be paid to Mr. A. J. Brewer, the British ship's officer, who was finally acquitted here of a charge of petty theft, has been reduced to 5,000 escudos (approximately 24s) according to the decision of the Supreme Court.

Mr. Brewer was arrested at Benguela (Portuguese West Africa) in 1927, and charged with stealing articles worth £1 from the local postmaster's house. He denied the charge.

After being kept in prison for nine months he was sentenced to 300 days' imprisonment and a fine of £10.

Following protests by the British Government he was released after serving two months of his sentence.

The Portuguese Government then ordered a retrial, which resulted in a verdict of not guilty, and the award of £1,800 damages and costs. Later, however, the High Court of Appeals, upon the appeal of the Portuguese Government, reversed the verdict and ordered Mr. Brewer to pay the damages.

INTEREST IN GOLD MOVEMENTS

BANK OF ENGLAND BUYS STERLING

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY]

London, Jan. 25. CONSIDERABLE interest is again aroused in the exchange of gold movements. The Bank of England's purchase, yesterday, of nearly four million sterling gold, the first since September 19, may be regarded as representing the sale by the Federated Reserve Bank of New York of a portion of the gold recently earmarked in London in connection with Britain's debt remittance.

The recent persistent demand for sterling is regarded in some degree as seasonal. It is also stimulated by the reductions in money rates in New York coupled with the advantage to foreign investors in sterling afforded by the discount on forward francs and dollars.

Another influence is said to be French purchases of sterling are prompted by apprehensions of increased taxation in France.

GOBI EXPLORER'S GRIM STORY

BURNING OIL ON ATTACKERS

FILM CAMERA MISTAKEN FOR MACHINE-GUN

A grim story of an explorer's part in the siege of Hami, a city in the Gobi Desert, in Mongolia, about 1,500 miles west of Peking, was told to the Royal Central Asian Society London by Mr. W. Petro. Mr. Petro was a member of last year's Haardt Citroen Expedition across the Gobi Desert and his lecture was the first to be given in England on the Expedition.

While in Hami he acted as intermediary between the Chinese garrison and the besieging Muhammadan rebels.

The first assault on the city lasted two days and two nights. Describing it Mr. Petro said: "In waves after waves rebels rushed towards the high walls under the terrific machine-gun and rifle fire of the garrison."

fire of the garrison. The first ranks were composed of Chinese slaves, whose only duty was to place ladders against the city walls. Next came Dungan soldiers armed with big swords who tried to climb up the wall.

In the third line were the best Turkic marksmen who with their rifle fire covered the advance of Dungs. The Dungs got over the city wall in three places, but their success was not supported by the reserves and they were literally torn to pieces by the Chinese.

"Medieval methods of defence were used with success. The soldiers hurled down on the rebels huge rocks and burning hay sprinkled with oil. When the attack ceased the ground near the walls was heaped with corpses, which were left to be devoured by packs of hungry dogs."

Subsequently, Mr. Petro visited the rebel commander, Ma Chung Ying. Told of his arrival, the commander said, "What a foreigner! Send him to the mountains to look after the horses."

Carried White Flag.

An ex-colonel of the Turkish Imperial General Staff, Kemal Bey, who was assisting Ma Chung Ying, let him remain in camp, however. While he was there another and more violent assault was made on Hami, and when the garrison sought peace parleys he asked to be allowed to assist.

"With a white handkerchief in my hand," said Mr. Petro, "I rode through no man's land. Note a dog was fired at by the Moslems just outside the city wall. Several Chinese soldiers were killed. I was dragged out of my home and started beating the rebels. Luckily, an officer who was a fairly severe electric shock."

KISSING CUSTOM LAPSING

DOCTORS' WARNING TAKING EFFECT?

London.—Has the old Christmas custom of kissing under the mistletoe gone out of fashion?

Kissing, in the opinion of medical science, is dangerous, says a doctor. "There are many diseases which can easily be transmitted by the mouth."

"Despite this view, men and women, even of the younger generation, who have ceased to practice it are hard to find."

"There appears to be ample consolation in the thought that he who kisses danger gladly, whether under the mistletoe or not will reap a reward commensurate with his bravery."

Grates for 5s.

Is the doctors' warning taking effect at last? Or is the courage born of romance dying?

Two years ago five times the amount of real mistletoe was sold than at this Christmas. Covent Garden is in despair over the increasing fastidiousness or timidity of people. Grates of mistletoe, laden with berries, are going for 5s. and still there is no rush.

On the other hand, the sale of artificial mistletoe is increasing. Do people hope that a synthetic kiss, stolen under a synthetic sprig, will risk only a synthetic infection? I suspect another reason, writes a Daily Express representative.

No Longer a Surprise.

What modern girl will blush, stammer, and look surprised at a mistletoe kiss? She has paid lip-service too long to be startled by this.

But the mistletoe is a mystic plant. "All Heal" is its significant name. Its wood form a precious amulet, magic properties chase sickness away.

In the days when England was young little boys brought sprigs to every door, and with them cheering "good luck."

So perhaps, in to-day's cynical world, vows plighted under the benign mistletoe bough will set the seal of happiness on many uncertain marriages.

knew me appeared on the scene, ordered the men off, and led me to his colonel.

"The General of the garrison refused to negotiate, and insisted on continuing the defence, trusting more to the advice of the local sorcery than to that of his staff. Three and a half months after the first assault the city was still besieged. Unconditional surrender was demanded, and it was only then that Mr. Petro was given permission to try to escape with his truck."

"At night," he said, "a breach was made in the city wall, and I succeeded in passing through the rebel lines."

For eight days he and his native assistant drove across desolate country until they reached safety. Shortly afterwards Hami was relieved, and Ma Chung Ying fled to become a Brigade Commander in the Chinese Central Government's Army.

Before reaching Hami the expedition had seen some fierce fighting. "We came upon a large force of Chinese troops defending themselves against rebels who were occupying the crests on both sides of the valley."

"When we appeared on the scene the firing suddenly ceased and the rebels retreated. They thought, as we learned afterwards, that we were Chinese reinforcements in armoured cars, and that our cinema camera, set on a tripod on the top of one of the cars, was a machine-gun."

Mr. Petro spoke of a peculiar experience during a sandstorm. "The particles of sand," he said, "striking the bodies of the cars electrified them to such an extent that when one touched the car one felt a fairly severe electric shock."

TRAVELLER FOR THE ROYAL MINT

Business Tour Of Latin-America

AN OFFICIAL LAMENT FOR THE SOVEREIGN

How one of the most ancient of British industries, the minting of money, is winning a world market is described by Colonel Sir Robert Johnson, Deputy Master and Comptroller of the Royal Mint, in his annual report for 1931.

The Ministry of Labour's denunciation of threepenny bits, the fate of the brass-looking shillings and halfpennies of a few years ago, and the location of the Empire's few remaining golden sovereigns are also discussed.

Since 1923, when the Mint first reversed its policy of not coining for foreign nations, Latvia, Lithuania, Egypt, Poland, Guatemala, the Hedjaz, Roumania, Greece, Iraq, and U.S.S.R. have had orders executed by it.

Although 1931 showed a heavy decrease on 1930, the record year for foreign coin production at the Mint, coins are being made this year for Yugoslavia, Albania, Roumania, Latvia, and Guatemala.

"It appeared to me," the Comptroller adds, "that other Governments in Central and South America might be glad to contract with the Royal Mint for their coinage. I have, therefore, recently visited several of the States in question, and although so far no definite order has materialised, great interest was evinced in my suggestions. I have since my return received several further inquiries, some of which will, I hope, eventuate in further work for the Department."

"In so far as the foreign work of this Department is concerned there has been as yet no visible sign of the crippling want of orders which has recently afflicted industry generally the world over."

"Bang Goes —"

The threepenny bit in 1931, the report records, enjoyed its best year since 1922. Scotland, with £24,500 of them, easily passed England with not quite £24,000, but the increased popularity even south of the Tweed is hard to account for. A possible factor, the diminution of unemployment benefit to a sum ending in an odd threepence, is discounted by the information that the Ministry of Labour have taken steps to minimise the tendency of their exchanges simply to dole out the small coin to which the English public "have a rooted objection."

The discoloration of the silver coins of a few years ago, which were cast in a binary alloy and now look a dirty yellow, has led to the invention at the Mint of a special machine. Streams of silver coins are poured into it and "it skilfully picks out and throws on one side all those made in the binary alloy." In this way £500,000 worth of yellowing silver was recovered and melted down last year.

The "Gold Rush." Seven million sovereigns, in the Mint's opinion, left Britain in the "gold rush" last winter, and at least the same value in gold trinkets. "The passionate searching of pockets for stray sovereigns will not quickly be forgotten," the report notes. The sovereign is now being made only in Pretoria, and Melbourne, and not many of them there.

"We are all in many ways the poorer for its departure," laments the Comptroller. "Apart from the satisfying jingle in his pocket which made John Bull feel twice the man when he did it, the loss to our coin series of Pistrucchi's 'St. George and the Dragon' design is greatly to be deplored on artistic grounds."

In all the Royal Mint struck 90,000,000 coins for the Imperial Imperial coinage in 1931; over 24,000,000 for the Empire, and 41,300,000 for foreign countries, the total showing a reduction on the previous year of nearly 30,000,000 pieces.

CRICKET NOTES

THE GREAT CONTROVERSY

LOCAL GAMES REVIEWED

It is not necessary to apologize to my readers for giving first place in these notes to the vexed question of Log Theory bowling. It is probably the first topic of conversation when cricketers foregather, and has risen to the rank of a serious controversy. It is, I imagine, the most serious question that has arisen in the world of cricket during the life time of my readers, and while one is tempted to compare it to the great battle over the under and over arm bowling, it must be remembered that that occurred in domestic cricket. The present incident has almost an international character, as it were, for the Australian Board of Control in no way acknowledges the authority of the M.C.C. in the way that most overseas cricket clubs do. They are, or so I understand, a body which functions in Australia as the M.C.C. does at home. And every reasonably-minded man will regret most deeply that the incident has occurred.

The M.C.C.'s Reply.

However much we may have deplored, or disapproved of the action of the Board of Control in sending the cable—or, at all events, of publishing it, I cannot but suspect that the majority will regret phylaxology of the M.C.C.'s reply which rather approximated to the "countercheck quarrelsome." And it is well to look at the matter from both sides. The fact that the Board telegraphed as they did shows that there is a strong feeling among a certain section of the Australian public, and that this feeling is shared by a majority of the Board. But that the more sporting cricketers in Australia agreed with raising a sequel when it was pretty obvious that the log theory bowling was going to place Australia in serious danger of losing the rubber I cannot believe. I dealt last week with the facts. It is not a new thing by any means but it seems that a rather more scientific arrangement of the field has made it more deadly. It only remains to say that it is difficult how one could stop its occasional use unless by some Mad-Hatter rule giving the batsman four runs if struck by a ball which has all along been outside the line of the leg stump. The M.C.C. were thus faced with a most difficult problem even if they had agreed with the Australian protest.

No Good Haverling.

As it turned out, they did not. And on careful consideration I think that the wording of the message was intended to be strong. It was of the utmost importance to let Jardine and Warner, and the team, know that the M.C.C. stood firmly behind them. And in the long run it was probably the wisest thing to leave the Australian Board with no idea that the M.C.C. were going to have round. The firm attitude they adopted might well be recommended to some of our so-called F.O. politicians in their dealings with other countries. And at the same time it should be remembered that the M.C.C. were functioning a good many years before there was any organized cricket in Australia and is entitled to adopt a somewhat parental attitude, in some people's eyes, anyway.

What Will Happen?

It is difficult to forecast what will happen. In the ordinary way one would imagine that the Australians, having made their protest, would now carry on, and adopt the same game themselves.

if they have not originally done so. But the news of the behaviour of the crowds makes one a little doubtful of what will happen, for the barrackers cannot but feel that they have the approval of the Board of Control behind their views, if not of their tactics. And I should imagine the next Test match might be a pretty unpleasant affair. To me, the solution of the whole question seems to me to lie in friendly co-operation between Woodfull and Jardine. If they can not save the situation, no public body can, and Test matches will be in abeyance. Personally I think this would be in one way deplorable. But when rivalry gets so keen that bad blood is developed, then it would be no bad thing if contests were stopped for a bit. Anyway, the Authorities of First Class Counties at home would be very glad to see the end of Test matches.

Last Saturday's League Match.

The Civil Service were without Baker, Hamilton and E. B. Reed who were all unfit, while Sayer has already left for home. De Rome stayed for a bit after their first wicket had fallen cheaply and then Wallington and Richardson put up an excellent stand. Wood also hit very hard, and Richardson, who had made his half-century in about an hour without giving a chance, was able to make a sporting declaration at 188 for 8 wickets. But the absence of his three regular bowlers was too great a handicap and the runs were obtained thanks to a very fine exhibition of cricket by Anderson and Rodrigues. They fully deserved their win.

The Navy got beaten by Craigen-

gower in a very low-scoring match, as did H.M.S. Devonshire by K.C.C., both dull games, but there was quite a good encounter between I.R.C. and the Army and play was prolonged into the gloom before the Indians triumphed by four wickets.

Sunday's Game.

The Volunteers were too much for the Navy in a very pleasant game at King's Park on Sunday last. Eaden got a couple of quick wickets, but Richardson, who seems to have lost his patch, was in form and Beck and Potter also got going. The latter, however, was dropped three times. Goodwin had one of his whirlwind beats for thirty-three not out. Marsham, Eaden and Potter alone got runs for the Navy who were beaten by forty-four runs.

Forthcoming Matches.

The only match on Saturday next—judging by cards, is a friendly between Craigen-gower and the C.S.C.C. who will again be rather short. The great match, however, is the one which opens to-day between the Club and the United Services. The Club have T. A. Pearce, E. J. R. Mitchell and E. C. Martin playing (out of a total of six men) for our Interport Golf team, which speaks pretty highly for the Club players' versatility. From the latest advice I have about the Services team I gather it consists of Mirehouse, Garthwaith, Stocker, A. C. Hamilton, Austrader, Colledge, Southern, Marsham, Holland, Lloyd and one more. Carver cannot get away, Shaw and Furnhill are not in the Colony, so Lloyd is keeping. Both sides are below full strength, but a most enjoyable and sporting game is sure to take place. I shall hope to give a full account of it in the next issue of the Daily Press on Saturday morning.

R. ABBIT.

CRICKETER TO PAY £175.

JUDGE ON LOVE TIFFS

Damages amounting to £175 and the costs were awarded at Sussex Assizes at Lewes against Mr. Henry William Parks, the Sussex professional cricketer, for breach of promise.

The action was brought by Miss Edith Annie Berry, of Western-road, Haywards Heath.

Mr. Justice Hawke, addressing the jury, said that because lovers had tiffs of was no indication that after marriage they were going to endure years of purgatory.

"One knows that lovers quarrel about the most absurd things," he added, "but often after marriage they fall out and kiss again in tears. I rather gather that may be true in Sussex, and cricketers in particular, and it may be that a successful cricketer in this country would be regarded as a bit of a catch."

INVENTOR OF PENALTY KICK DEAD

WHY THE RULE WAS INTRODUCED

Mr. William McCrum, of Milford Co., Armagh, the man who invented the penalty-kick rule in Soccer, died last month.

Before the rule was introduced the only penalty for unfair play was a free kick from which a goal could not be scored. Many a back, in haste to hit the ball away, hesitated to hit the ball away or trip an opposing forward, knowing that there was practically no danger from the resulting free kick. So Mr. McCrum introduced the penalty.

Mr. McCrum was forty-seven years of age, and was educated at the Royal School, Armagh, and Trinity College, Dublin, where he was a classical scholar in 1895 and took his B.A. degree the following year.

He was high sheriff of Armagh in 1909.

HONG KONG BEAT SHANGHAI IN FOURSOMES

Hong Kong's victory in all three matches reflected a general superiority of play, due in part no doubt to knowledge of the course. O. C. Martin was in particularly good form all through and E. J. R. Mitchell was extremely steady in approaches and on the greens.

The latter, partnered by Lissaman, had a keen struggle as the score suggests, the visitors showing a great improvement after tiffin. Martin and Budd (Hong Kong) beat Harris and Higgett (Shanghai) 5 and 4.

Andrews and Pearce (Hong Kong) beat Terrace and Another (Shanghai) 3 and 1.

Lissaman and Mitchell (Hong Kong) beat Bettik and Prevot (Shanghai) 2 and 1.

THE INTERPORT

HONG KONG FAVOURED TO BEAT SHANGHAI

Football enthusiasts will no doubt flock to the Hong Kong Football Club this afternoon when the Interport Football match between Hong Kong and Shanghai will be played.

This game promises to be most thrilling and hard-fought, as Shanghai, which was beaten by four goals to three on its own ground in the last Interport, has sent down one of the strongest teams available in an endeavour to recapture the cup.

Both teams have so far lost only once on its own ground, and it is left to our side this afternoon to see whether they can frustrate the ambitions of our visitors.

This afternoon, Hong Kong will field a team that consists of six changes from the last Interport, the new players being Allan, Lau Mau, Leung Wing Chiu, A. V. Gosano, B. Gosano and Seal. It will be recalled that the team which defeated Shanghai last year was considered comparatively weak compared with this year's, but despite all criticisms, it came through with flying colours.

The result of this afternoon's match is very open, and while we wish our visitors every bit of luck in their endeavour, we venture to forecast that the local side will win, for besides having the advantage of playing on our own ground, we have fielded the best players at our disposal.

The players for the match will probably be:

Hong Kong.

Rodger, Allan and Lau Mau (vice-captain); Leung Wing Chiu, Pardoe (captain), and Duncan; Cheng Siu Hong, Wong Mei Shun, A. V. Gosano, B. Gosano and Seal.

Shanghai.

Bradley, Turner and Voong Remedios, Gash (Captain) and Vance; Keats, K. C. Chen, Collet, Rosset and Hughes.

Playing against a heavier pack in the Club "A" XV, in a friendly game at Sookunpoo yesterday, the South Wales Borderers did well to win by nine points (three tries) to nil.

The soldiers were the faster of the two sides and their "threes" in particular were definitely the better set. Simmons played a sterling game for the winners while McElroy and Fox were the pick of the Club.

R.A.M.C. AT MACAO

The R.A.M.C. Hockey Team visited Macao on Sunday and played a game of Hockey against the Macao Hockey Club. It was a "fast" and "interesting" game. The Macao side scored a shot in the first 5 minutes of the game. After about 20 minutes the R.A.M.C. equalised and (5) five minutes later scored again. This ended the scoring, but the play went from end to end until the end of the game.

U.S. CRUDE OIL SOURCES DWINDLING?

PROPOSAL TO FORM AN INTER-STATE BODY

Washington, Jan. 18.—American crude oil sources are dwindling and the Department of the Interior to-day issued a warning that steps should be taken at once to conserve the supply and, at the same time, to protect the domestic oil industry.

Department reports show that petroleum producers have been running wild in recent years. The industry itself is not organized, resources have been wasted and the industry is generally in bad shape. There is now no efficient check on production. The Federal Government is empowered, through the Supreme Court, to prevent states from controlling production but cannot, with its own police power, do so.

The Department, therefore, proposes that an inter-state body be formed with Federal and State compacts, to protect the industry from outside dangers and from itself.

Conditions have become worse in the last three weeks, according to reports of the American Petroleum Institute, which has urged further reduction of output.

The low price levels pertaining have failed to restrict production naturally. When the Supreme Court declared the action of Mr. Ross Sterling, Governor of Texas in forcibly closing down many wells as a usurpation of power, owners of closed wells began to over-produce in an effort to make up for lost time. Mr. Sterling's move, was an effort to advance prices, however, rather than to conserve oil.

Some of the pools are being drained while others are forced to close down wells, a practice that sometimes permanently damages them.

GAOL FOR TELLING CABINET SECRETS

STERN WARNING TO EX-MINISTERS

Two years' imprisonment, under the Official Secrets Act, is the penalty for Cabinet Ministers or ex-Ministers who reveal in the slightest degree their discussions in the secrecy of the Cabinet, said Lord Hailsham in the House of Lords.

With all the authority of a former Lord Chancellor and a former Attorney General, Lord Hailsham laid down the law emphatically. Not merely the Privy Counsellor's oath of secrecy, which all Cabinet Ministers take, but the stern sanctions of the criminal law forbid them to say a word.

Unwitting Victims.

Visions of the prison doors closing on loquacious or even on careless Ministers of the Crown made a grotesque end to a debate which arose through Mr. Lloyd George's recent request, which was refused, for the publication of Cabinet discussions on the American war debt in 1922.

It was a joke in the lobbies that, unwittingly, a great many Ministers and ex-Ministers, if the law were applied, might now be in "quod."

Unfortunate Idea.

Lord Hailsham said: "The unfortunate thing that seems to have happened recently is that some Privy Counsellors seem to have had a kind of idea that so long as they did not read out what they called 'Cabinet minutes' it was all right to state their recollection of what had happened in the Cabinet."

"In the view of the Government and, I believe on reflection, of every one who has taken the Privy Counsellor's oath, that is a complete misconception."

"The obligation to refrain from disclosure of anything which is discussed in the Cabinet extends just as much to your own recollection as to any written record."

Observing that no record of Cabinet decisions was kept until the war, Lord Hailsham caused amusement by reading a letter written by the late Lord Hartington's private secretary to one of the private secretaries of Mr. Gladstone when Prime Minister in 1882.

The letter ran:—"My dear Eddie, Harcourt and Chamberlain have both been here this morning and at my chief about yesterday's Cabinet proceedings. They cannot agree about what occurred. There must have been some decision, as Bright's resignation shows."

longed ten years ago; another Privy Counsellor rose up and denied his version. A third made another contribution from a different angle.

"Probably unwittingly, in the excitement of the moment, at least two of them said what had happened in the privacy of the Cabinet. The mischief was done almost before it was realised."

Lord Sankey, the Lord Chancellor, who was a member of the Socialist Cabinet, was all for the rule of secrecy. Without it, he said, the Cabinet system of Government would be impossible. Disclosure of Cabinet proceedings, apart from anything else, was, he said, a breach of a man's personal honour.

These strong statements of views meant that the Government had turned their face more strongly than ever against the publication of the 1922 discussions which Mr. Baldwin last week said would be an admirable thing to publish.

"My chief has told me to ask you what the devil was decided, for he has damned if he knows. Will you ask Mr. G. (meaning Gladstone), said Lord Hailsham in more conventional and less pungent terms, Yours ever."

"Intolerable Position"

"Your lordships will see," added Lord Hailsham, "that occasionally there must have been inconvenience from the old practice."

"My own personal view," he continued, "and I have no doubt it is the view of my colleagues in the Government, is that it would be most undesirable if the rule of Cabinet secrecy should be modified or abolished."

"It would be an intolerable position if in a discussion in the Cabinet Ministers had to remember that what they said might be liable to be brought up against them, and themselves charged with inconsistency if they departed from what they said."

"It is absolutely essential in the public interest that the discussions which take place in the Cabinet shall take place in the full certainty of all the Ministers that they are speaking their minds with absolute freedom to colleagues on whom they can implicitly rely, and with regard to matters upon which it is their sworn duty to express their opinions with complete frankness, without any haunting fears that what happens may thereafter be

MATCH FOR BRITISH BOXER

New York, Jan. 18.—The New York Boxing Commission announced today that Thomas Samuel "Seaman" Watson, featherweight champion of the British Empire, was a worthy fighter, and would be allowed to meet "Kee" Chocolate of Cuba, in a world's championship bout.

The decisions of the commission was based on the findings of a jury of deputy athletic commissioners, which studied the ability of Watson as a fighter.

The jury gave the Britisher a clean slate, and recommended that he be entitled to the title match with the Cuban.

Chocolate is holder of the New York commission feather title and of the trick junior-lightweight crown under the National Boxing Association.

its publication creates difficulties for themselves or be fraught with some grave complications for the King and country which they are trying to serve.

Indefinite Rule.

"For these reasons," he concluded, "I hope the inflexibility which has hitherto prevailed will be maintained in its integrity."

Lord Rankin, formerly Mr. Fitzalan Hopwood, Chairman of Committees and Deputy Speaker, who raised the discussion, said there was an "absolute orgy" in September 1931, of assertion and denial of matters dealt with only a few weeks previously in the Cabinet.

He mentioned no names, but his reference was to the debate following the break-up of the Socialist Government, when Lord (then Mr.) Snowden, Mr. Henderson, Mr. Greenwood, Mr. Thomas, and the Prime Minister himself debated in the House of Commons the reasons why the Socialist Government collapsed.

Again mentioning no names, but obviously referring to the dispute last week between Mr. Lloyd George, Sir Robert Horne, and Sir Austen Chamberlain, Lord Rankin said:—

The Mischief Done.

"One Privy Counsellor rose, from a motive with which I entirely sympathise, to say what he believed and remembered was the policy of the Government to which he be-

ART IN INDUSTRY

What Britain Can Do In Design

BURLINGTON HOUSE EXHIBITION

For the first time in its history the Royal Academy is arranging for an Exhibition of Art in British Industry, by way of convincing the world that in this respect our designers are abreast and in many ways ahead of rivals abroad.

Following the Retrospective Exhibition of British Art arranged for the spring of 1934, the exhibition is dated for the January and February of 1935, and will cover textiles, glass, pottery, furniture, metal-work, printing, &c.

The undertaking is in collaboration with the Royal Society of Arts, and the Society's secretary, Mr. G. K. Menzies, said:

"The decision is a 'beau geste' on the part of the Royal Academy, and shows that although primarily concerned with the fine arts, the president and council realise the necessity for making a supreme effort to emphasise the value of the artist to industry, as well as the dependence of industry on design, greatly to the benefit of the nation's trade and finances."

British Originality.

"Experience and search go to prove the wonderful fund of taste and originality awaiting development in our own people. One of our recent prize-winners in textile design is the daughter of a butcher, and a winner two years running in another field is the son of a bricklayer's labourer. But for the society's encouragement competitors like these would probably go unnoticed."

With regard to the choice of 1935 the secretary of the Royal Academy, Mr. W. R. M. Lamb, said: "The spring of 1933 and 1934 are already provided for, and the council believe in concentrating on one intermediate show a year so as to ensure its complete success. Besides, we find that a couple of years is none too long a period for manufacturers to take full measures for achieving artistic and distinctive work in so many different sections."

Besides, there will be an enormous amount of organising and administrative work to be done, if (Continued on next Column)

"G.B.S." SHOULD GO TO BIRLE CLASS

EDINBURGH DEAN ATTACKS "BLACK GIRL IN SEARCH OF GOD"

A lively criticism of Mr. George Bernard Shaw was made by the Very Rev. Dr. W. Perry, the Dean of Edinburgh, at the annual meeting in Edinburgh of the local battalion of the Boys' Brigade.

He said the Brigade did not arrive early enough to catch Mr. Bernard Shaw in his teens. It might be a light of imagination to picture as a member of the Boys' Brigade, but he could think of him as a keen member of the band beating his own drum.

If Mr. Shaw had had the good fortune to be a member of a Boys' Brigade in his youth he would have saved himself from lumbering his head with a vast quantity of prejudices—religious, political, and social—which at one time might have been regarded as original but which were now getting rather stale.

The Dean said he was moved to make these remarks by the fact that there came into his hands a tract written by Mr. Shaw which he thought contained more poisonously inaccurate statements than any tract he ever read.

In Search of God.

In less than 20 pages of a little story of a girl who goes in search of God Mr. Shaw flung the Ten Commandments, most of the Old Testament, and a big part of the New Testament into the dustbin.

They should invite Mr. Shaw to a Boys' Brigade Bible class and make him attend regularly. If their boys were not learning the truth about the Bible in their early days they were most certain to imbibed the crudities of secularist lectures.

Lord Sands, who presided, said that during the past years the number of boys had increased by nearly 200. Camps had been attended by about 1,000. There were no fewer than 300 boys in various battalion bands.

As we trust, we are to succeed in fixing the attention of the public on a matter of such urgent artistic and economic interest.

DOLLAR STEAMSHIP LINES

NEW TRANS-PACIFIC SCHEDULE.

The Robert Dollar Company, General Agents for the Dollar Steamship Lines, announce a new Trans-Pacific schedule, effective with the sailing of the President Hoover from Hong Kong on February 1.

Hereafter the two new Turbo-Electric liners, President Hoover and President Coolidge will turn around at San Francisco and return to the Orient. All other vessels on the San Francisco run will continue on through to New York as in the past, and will maintain the same frequency of sailings as heretofore.

Since their arrival in the Trans-Pacific trade route last year, the huge new liners President Hoover and President Coolidge have become increasingly popular and the new schedule, permitting these two steamers to serve the Pacific ports entirely is an indication of the desire of the Dollar Company to give its Trans-Pacific patrons the best possible service. By this change of schedule, the Dollar Line gives shippers and travellers on the Pacific the benefit of more frequent sailings by their newer and larger ships.

The rearrangement of vessels does not affect frequency of sailings from any port, as a through service is still maintained through to New York all the way by Dollar Line steamers. The transit time from Hong Kong to New York remains the same, 30 days as heretofore.

We see with the brain, I read. Which explains why some people regard us with a vacant stare.
